The Lords' Taverners was conceived in 1949 by a group of actors and members of allied professions who habitually watched Cricket from the Tavern at Lord's Cricket Ground in London. The Club spread to Australia in 1982 and became an autonomous body with branches in all States and Territories. The primary aim of the Taverners, as a benevolent body, is to propagate the game of Cricket at all levels, with an emphasis on the underprivileged and disadvantaged. The Club promotes the enjoyment of companionship which Cricket offers and, in a brief period, has made a significant impact in the game and with its supporters in Queensland.
